Subject Overview:	This is the first of two subjects that all Master of Teaching students complete as part of their Capstone experience. Incorporating campus-based seminars and online modules, the subject will introduce students to different approaches to teacher led research and examine the important role of research in enabling educators to transform educational practices. Topics that will be examined include: undertaking ethical teacher research; accessing, gathering and critically analysing evidence from primary and secondary sources; writing up research, and; translating research into practice. Together these topic areas will provide students with the confidence, knowledge and skills to plan and carry out their own small-scale investigations for their Capstone project and future professional work. The subject will also introduce the research topics that students can choose from for their capstone research project.
Learning Outcomes:	On completion of this subject, teacher candidates should be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # Use appropriate methods to collect data about the practices of learning and teaching # Appreciate values and ethical dimensions of practitioner research # Analyse data collected by themselves and critically appraise research presented in journal articles, policy documents and reports # Understand how to represent research findings in textual and other forms # Use research findings to advance education theory and practice
