Subject Overview:	There are many possible genres of self-writing. Autobiography and autofiction are the most read at present. Studying them opens up the relation between literature and history, fact and fiction in life narratives. This subject will study the tradition of French autobiography and autofiction from the 20th and 21st centuries. It will involve an exploration of the evolution of these modes of writing in contemporary French literature. Students will learn how to read these texts, and to what end. They will also have the opportunity of a "hands on" study of the strategies of writing the self by engaging in a creative writing exercise.
Learning Outcomes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # to be able to demonstrate a familiarity with the recent tradition of autobiographical writing in French. # To be able to discern strategies of representing the self and its evolution, its relation with its context, as well as to understand the transformations in such strategies. # to be able to adapt their understanding of models of the genre to their own writing practices in French.
