Subject Overview:	In its first 165 years the US grew from a disparate collection of east-coast colonies to a major world power. This subject examines American society through these years, exploring the intertwined themes of slavery, freedom and growth. The first part focuses on the consequences of the existence of slavery in a free society. The second part examines the dynamics and consequences of growth. Topics include the emergence of a market economy, the 'frontier' and the fate of indigenous Americans during the decades of westward expansion, and expansion overseas at the end of the 19th century. The third part examines visions of and debates about the emergence of modern mass society and culture in the first four decades of the twentieth century, and topics will include Prohibition, the Great Depression and New Deal, broadcasting, the segregated South, and immigration.
