Subject Overview:	This subject examines the legal issues and practical challenges that arise in relation to cross-border transactions in Asia Pacific. Students will work through a series of cross-border transactions, which will be used as a point of reference throughout the subject. In this way, students will develop an advanced and integrated understanding of the nature of cross-border transactions (involving parties and assets in different jurisdictions) and also the legal issues that are relevant to each stage of a complex transaction. These issues will include the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # The different legal and regulatory systems in the selected jurisdictions; # The impact of applicable law (in a contractual context and otherwise), including the impact of different areas of law such as contract, property, company, finance, and insolvency law; # Dispute resolution and the different options in a cross-border transaction; # The role of lawyers and the skills they require in a cross-border transaction (these include advisory skills, drafting skills, cross-cultural communication skills, negotiation skills and transaction management skills); and # The importance of legal due diligence in relation to counterparties and assets.
Learning Outcomes:	A student who has successfully completed this subject should have an advanced understanding of, and be able to critically analyse: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # Fundamental aspects of the practice of commercial law from the perspective of a cross-border transaction and the importance of understanding the different models and approaches; # The structure and operation of selected legal systems in Asia Pacific; # The interaction and different dynamics between policy, legal systems and commercial laws in Asia Pacific; # Practical commercial dispute resolution and contract management; # The role of commercial lawyers and the importance of developing a commercial awareness so that lawyers can function effectively as legal advisors in a cross-border context; # The challenges facing lawyers practising in a foreign jurisdiction; # The utility and limitations of comparative analyses of laws; and # Practical case studies relating to business and investment in Asia Pacific. A student who has successfully completed this subject should also be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # Apply this understanding and analytical capacity to new situations and contexts; and # Communicate their analysis in appropriate scholarly and professional formats.
Assessment:	Class participation, including participating in simulated drafting and negotiation exercises that are designed to highlight the relevance and application of core skills at an advanced level (hurdle requirement). Students will be expected to participate actively in class and to draw on their collective experience in identifying, analysing and advising on the legal issues that are relevant to commercial transactions. Written client advice (1,500 words) on a legal issue concerning a cross-border transaction (30%). Students will be expected to produce a professional memorandum of advice that is based on in- depth research and analysis, and that explains a complex area of law in terms that are accessible to an informed lay-person. Three-hour, open-book examination (70%).
Prescribed Texts:	Specialist printed materials will be made available from Melbourne Law School.
