Subject Overview:	An overview of music, culture and society in Western Europe from the 17th to the late 18th centuries. We will explore the development of musical styles during the period in their cultural, social and political contexts. Through an examination of works by Monteverdi, Schütz, Lully, Vivaldi, Handel, J. S. Bach, W. A. Mozart and J. Haydn, among others, we will examine current scholarship on authenticity and performance practice, music and politics, gender and sexuality, and music and meaning. Students will engage in an individual performance- and research-based project on a work relevant to them; through the tutorial exercises, presentation and essay, they will be encouraged to explore this work from various perspectives, including historically, analytically and performative.
Learning Outcomes:	On completion of this subject students should be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # Understand music from the Baroque to the end of the Classical period in its cultural context # Incorporate period-specific performance practices # Discriminate both aurally and conceptually between the main music genres and styles from the Baroque to the end of the Classical period # Undertake basic scholarly work using music-specific bibliographic tools # Discuss music coherently using an appropriate technical vocabulary # Engage meaningfully with contemporary scholarship on the periods examined # Work constructively yet rigorously with peers

Assessment:	Three tutorial assignments equivalent to 400 words each, due in week 4, 6 and 8, respectively (30% - 10% for each assignment); A 10 minute performance- research-based presentation, to be delivered during the examination period (30%), A 2000-word essay (40%), due in week 10.
