Subject Overview:	This subject will examine a range of different topics relating to choral music, from plainchant to contemporary Australian composition. It will provide an opportunity to examine some of the social, cultural and political forces that have shaped our perceptions of this music, and to study selected examples of the choral repertoire, including large-scale Renaissance works such as Tallis's 40-part Spem in alium ; Bach's B-minor Mass; the working men's choirs of the early nineteenth century; choral societies in colonial Melbourne; the role of choirs in the Early Music revival; and recent choral compositions by Elliott Gyger, Eric Whitacre and others.
Learning Outcomes:	On successful completion of this subject students should have developed: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # an increased familiarity with the choral repertoire # an increased awareness of the importance of choral music in the history of Western Art Music # a deeper understanding of some of the historical and social factors that shaped this repertoire # an awareness of some of the performance practice issues pertaining to choral music # the ability to think more critically about questions of value in Western Classical music
Assessment:	Two tutorial assignments of 500 words each, due in weeks 3 and 6 respectively (20% - 10% each assignment); 1000 word report on live choral performance (as audience member or performer), due in week 9 (25%); essay of 2000 words, due end of semester (55%).
