Subject Overview:	This subject is a practical and theoretical exploration of the development of the modern musical from its beginnings through to the end of what is commonly termed 'The Golden Age' through the lens of the large ensemble, delivered through a weekly 2-hour large ensemble singing class and a one-hour embedded lecture. Singing in the supportive environment of a large group, students will explore the role of large ensemble songs of significant shows of the period whilst developing skills in safe voice usage and technique, basic music notation, harmonies, song structure and style as well as developing an understanding of acting through song. Each week the lecture will focus on a musical that changed the music theatre landscape and its impact on the development of the form will be discussed. The subject will conclude with a short performance featuring a sample of the repertoire covered. No former singing or musical experience is necessary.
Learning Outcomes:	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # Develop knowledge of music theatre repertoire and history # Develop practical knowledge of safe voice usage. # Develop collaborative learning skills # Develop respect for the values and principles of ensemble performance.
