Subject Overview:	This subject examines the nature of philosophy itself. Students will read what many great philosophers have said about the methods, aims, and ambitions of philosophy. And they will examine how these views have been applied in thinking about metaphysics, epistemology, or morality. The subject provides the opportunity to reflect on different strands in the philosophical tradition, which inspire conflicting projects in contemporary philosophy. It should also encourage students to reflect on the nature and methods of the philosophy they have studied to date. The subject is intended for students nearing completion of a philosophy major, but may also be taken by others.
Learning Outcomes:	Students who successfully complete this subject will <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # know what a number of important philosophers have said about the nature of philosophy. # have reflected on the nature of philosophy in the context of the philosophy they have learned. # be able to articulate and defend their views on the matter. # have improved their skills in writing and researching philosophy. # have improved their ability in the critical analysis of texts.
