Subject Overview:	This subject examines the role of language in computer-mediated communication (CMC). It introduces students to a range of theoretical issues, with reference to both interpersonal and group interactions, and discusses distinctive research methodologies that are associated with CMC. In this subject, we see the Internet as an interactive medium of communication as we explore how CMC operates in diverse social, cultural and linguistic areas. We cover topics that include language expression, online relationships, virtual worlds, CMC discourse and second language learning.
Learning Outcomes:	Students who complete this subject will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # Critically evaluate the social, cultural and linguistic issues of computer-mediated communication # Proficiently employ online tools that utilise different modes of communication # Confidently demonstrate an understanding of how technical mediation affects language use and discourse # Understand the complex interplays of language use and online communication
Assessment:	Autoethnography of CMC collaboration (1000 words) due in week 5 [20%] Focused CMC analysis (1000 words) due in week 9 [20%] CMC discourse analysis (2000 words) due in week 14 [60%] This subject has the following hurdle requirements: Regular participation in tutorials is required with a minimum of 75% attendance.
