Subject Overview:	This subject explores approaches to teaching historical thinking. The Australian Curriculum aims to enhance the capacity of school students to engage in historical thought. This subject examines research-driven models of historical thinking from around the globe. Students develop a critical understanding of these approaches and the ability to apply them. These models provide a lens through which the subject examines disciplinary content from the Australian Curriculum: The Ancient World and The Ancient to the Modern World . This includes overview material and coverage of chosen depth studies (social, political, economic and cultural developments). There is a special focus on the use of sources and contestability in history.
Learning Outcomes:	On completion of this subject students should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of theory and practice in history education; # Demonstrate knowledge and understanding of two historical periods included in the Australian Curriculum (including social, political, economic and cultural developments); # Engage in historical thinking through analysis of primary and secondary sources; # Critically analyse leading models of historical thinking and their implications for learning and teaching; # Demonstrate sufficient depth of knowledge and understanding to design, use and evaluate resources for teaching history.
Assessment:	There are two assessment tasks: Essay (Historical Argument), 2500 words, due mid-semester (50%) Project (Teaching Historical Thinking), 2500 words, due end-of-semester (50%) This subject has a minimum hurdle requirement of 80% attendance at all tutorials, seminars and workshops.
