Subject Overview:	This subject develops two main threads. It introduces students to one of the main genres of medieval literature, the romance, with a special focus on the representation of love, sex, and desire in the Middle Ages, and especially the works of Geoffrey Chaucer, Thomas Malory and the author of Sir Gawain and the Green Knight. It also examines the phenomenon of 'romancing' medieval culture in the various traditions and genres of modern medievalism; for example in the poetry of Tennyson, in fairy-tales, and in modern fantasy and medievalist fiction. Some medieval texts will be read in Middle English; others in modern translation.
Learning Outcomes:	On completion of the subject students should have: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li># familiarity with one of the main genres of medieval literature;</li> <li># a reading knowledge of Chaucerian English;</li> <li># an understanding of the main trends in medievalism;</li> <li># some familiarity with the critical traditions of reading medieval and medievalist literature.</li> </ul>
Assessment:	One essay of 1500 words (40%), due mid-semester, and an essay of 2500 words (60%), due in the examination period. This subject has a minimum hurdle requirement of 80% attendance and regular participation in tutorials. Assessment submitted late without an approved extension will be penalised at 10% per day. In-class tasks missed without approval will not be marked. All pieces of written work must be submitted to pass this subject.
