Subject Overview:	This is an introductory subject for students with little or no knowledge of German. Its goal is to generate a firm grounding in the basics of German grammar and language structure in conjunction with the development of cultural literacy (including a sensitivity to the social contexts of communication). Students acquire a basic vocabulary, learn to discern and employ the structures, patterns and grammatical features of a foreign language, and develop the ability to engage with simple texts. Students reach a level of simple text production (eg. letters, emails, personal résumés or family backgrounds). Students will learn how to converse in a number of different informal communicative situations and begin to use language in limited formal settings. The study of culture is integrated into language acquisition and is designed to develop basic listening, speaking, reading and writing skills. This engagement with a range of different authentic texts and media will be embedded in the learning about key aspects of German, Austrian and Swiss culture.
Learning Outcomes:	On successful completion of this subject, students should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # be able to interpret and synthesize information from simple texts about the self, other people and places from a variety of audio-visual media; # be able to use a basic vocabulary from a range of basic, day-to-day communicative situations about the self, family, occupations and pastimes; # have started using basic grammatical and syntactic structures of German; # understand and use basic idiomatic and conversational forms appropriately in a limited number of informal and formal settings;

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> # be able to find information from various sources, including dictionary, library and the internet; # have become familiar with German cultural traditions and practices, and to appreciate regional diversity; # have developed a differentiated and informed understanding of self and other and of cross-cultural exchange, apprehend and appreciate features of the interaction of language and identity, and develop an openness to the world and an awareness of cultural and historical contexts; # have acquired time management and planning skills through managing and organizing workloads and develop analytical skills, learning strategies and the ability to process, organize and integrate information; # be able to work effectively in groups in both English and German and develop the ability to reflect on their language learning process .
Assessment:	Mid semester test (equivalent to 600 words) in week 8 [15%] Two listening comprehension tests (equivalent to 200 words each) in weeks 6 and 10 [10%] Three pieces of written homework (equivalent to 200 words each) in weeks 4, 6 and 11 [15%] Five vocabulary tests (equivalent to 80 words each) in weeks 3, 5, 6, 9 and 11 [10%] A 2 hour final exam held during the end-of-semester examination period [50%] This subject has the following hurdle requirements: Regular participation in tutorials is required with a minimum of 80% attendance.
