Subject Overview:	This subject is for students who have completed German 1 and 2. It may also be taken by students who have learned German for several years (but not to VCE level) or who have spent more than six months in a German-speaking country. In this subject students extend their competencies in writing, reading, speaking and listening by engaging with authentic texts and situations, rather than those generated with the language learner in mind. Students will learn the skills to deal with the complexity of authentic texts such as feature films, poetry, song lyrics and opinion articles, and to source information in German on the internet. Students also learn to communicate at a more sophisticated level, going beyond utterances focused exclusively on the self, and developing structures and vocabulary that enable them to express themselves in the context of broader social and cultural themes such as music and popular culture and notions of ethnicity, nationalism and belonging. Students begin to produce texts and utterances of a more critical nature such as film reviews and formal debates. On completion of the subject students

	should have attained a moderate level of complexity in speaking, aural comprehension, reading and writing of German.
Learning Outcomes:	On successful completion of this subject, students should: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # be able to read more sophisticated texts and to practice and augment accurate writing skills; # have used a wider range of vocabulary about people and places including language about historical and contemporary themes; use more complex grammatical structures including a greater range of tenses and cases and modes; # be able to comprehend more complex spoken German and express themselves in broader social and political contexts; # be able to find information from various sources, including dictionary, library and the internet; develop analytical skills, learning strategies and the ability to process, organize and integrate information; # have developed a differentiated and informed understanding of self and other and of cross-cultural exchange; apprehend and appreciate features of the interaction of language and identity; engage with contemporary and historical themes in the German national consciousness; # have developed an openness to the world and an awareness of cultural and historical contexts; # have acquired time management and planning skills through managing and organizing workloads; # have developed the ability to reflect on their language learning process and on linguistic and cultural differences of the target language and cultures.
Assessment:	Three reflective learning journals during semester [10%] Written work during semester [35%] Oral presentation during semester [5%] 2 hour final exam during the exam period [50%] This subject has the following hurdle requirements: 2 x 30 minutes listening tests.
