Course Overview:	Global processes have transformed the requirements of work and the labour market, as well as cultural and political landscapes, requiring new ways of approaching education and training. The Master of Global Studies in Education will explore the complex ways in which the world is becoming interconnected and interdependent and the impact of this on education settings, pedagogy, curriculum and assessment. It highlights the imperatives for responding to the changing external environment with regard to education policy and governance. The course is only offered as part-time study and can be completed over two years. The course covers contemporary issues in globalisation, policy and leadership, identity, culture and citizenship, and youth participation in a digital age. To attract and enable a transnational cohort that reflects the focus of the program, delivery will be fully on-line. Cohorts will be limited to a maximum number of participants that will complete the program as a cohort and requires the cohort to pursue the same sequence of subjects. New deliveries will be scheduled once a new minimum cohort is achieved. This approach is modelled on a successful international program delivered by the University of Illinois, which was coordinated by Professor Fazal Rizvi, who will be the Course Coordinator for this program. The University of Illinois is the only other global provider of a Global Studies in Education online program. MGSE has specifically listed this course in its most recent Business Plan as a strategic priority in delivering postgraduate qualifications wholly online. The faculty has enlisted MCP to support and operationalize this strategy. MCP currently delivers industry focused online programs with MGSE.
Learning Outcomes:	The objectives of the course are to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • develop a critical understanding of global changes and their impact on education • explore key theoretical debates about globalization, citizenship and education • acquire a range of resources for internationalizing curriculum and pedagogy • enhance student skills and capabilities to work in culturally diverse global settings • explore recent reforms in education in the Asia-Pacific region • compete an individually guided project linked to their professional work
Course Structure & Available Subjects:	The Master, Global Studies in Education will comprise 4 x 25 point subjects delivered fully online, with the last subject being a research capstone subject, designed to provide students with the skills involved in critically reading research conducted in international settings; and develop, implement and report on a minor research project dealing with issues of international education.
