Subject Overview:	The course is an occasion to reflect on some important recent developments in global politics: the global economic crisis, Islamist militancy, humanitarian intervention and global surveillance. Its thematic cohesion comes from the choice of a left political perspective in selecting readings. Accordingly, the main issues are understood within the broader context of the post-World War II interests of capital and state in the powerful countries – especially in North America, Western Europe and the Middle East. By the end of the course you should have a rigorous understanding of contemporary critical thought on developments that are likely to shape the coming generation.
Learning Outcomes:	students who successfully complete this subject will: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> # understand the theoretical sources of the key concepts in this area of study; # understand the application of these concepts to their professional field or study area; # have developed research and analysis skills to enable further study in the area of international justice at a higher academic level.
Assessment:	A 1000 word short answer essay due mid semester (20%) A 4000 word final essay, due at the end of semester (80%) Hurdle requirement: Students must attend a minimum of 80% of classes in order to pass this subject.
